425. When a radio-telegram from a ship at sea or an aircraft in flight cannot be delivered to the addressee on land, the fact, with the reason assigned for the non-delivery, shall be communicated to the ship or aircraft for the information of the sender. 430. If the coast station or aeronautical station knows that the ship or aircraft has passed beyond the range of transmission and beyond the range of transmission of any other coast station or aeronautical station of the same administration before the radio-telegram could be transmitted to the ship or aircraft, the office of origin shall be informed accordingly by service advice without delay for intimation to the sender.

431. When a radio-telegram cannot be transmitted to a ship or an aircraft owing to the arrival of the ship or aircraft in a port near to the coast station or aeronautical station, the latter may, if necessary, forward the radio-telegram to the ship or aircraft by other means of communication.

MESSAGE FORMS TO BE PRESERVED.

Government Higher Elementary Training School, Mint Road Lane, Madras.	30	30 (for Adi-Dravidas). 30 (for Indo-Paki-stanis).	120

The medium of instruction in the school for Muhammadans is Urdu and that in the other school is Tamil.

2. The period of training is two years.

3. The selection of candidates will be made by the District Educational Officer on the recommendations of the Inspecting officers.

4. Admission to the Lower Elementary Grade in the Government Muhammadan Training School, Madras, will be made only if a sufficient number of applications from qualified candidates is received. The applicants should therefore take the risk of their applications being transferred to other Muhammadan Training Schools in the Presidency.

5. Inspecting officers are requested to forward before 1st May 1934 two lists, separately for each grade, one of recommended and the other of rejected candidates and they are requested to see that all the columns of the applications are properly and correctly filled in. In making these recommendations the following points may be considered:—

The general educational attainments of candidates, their service as teachers, the need for their training, the nature of their appointments, and the school from which they apply for training.

Candidates who do not satisfy the condition of age limit under rule 113 of the Madras Educational Rules should not, except in very special circumstances, be included in the list and the recommendations should be regulated by rule 114 ibid. In the case of rejected candidates, the reasons for rejection should invariably be indicated in the list against each name.

6. Students admitted on Provincial stipendiaries will be paid stipends at the rates given below:—

(1) Teachers of the Higher Elementary Grade—Rs. 5 a month.

(2) Teachers of the Lower Elementary Grade—
Depressed classes and Muslims—Rs. 6 a month.
Others—Rs. 5 a month.

7. In addition to Provincial stipendiaries, candidates whose stipends are paid by local or municipal boards or the Labour department may be admitted for training, as also private candidates as free students, if accommodation permits. No Provincial stipends will be sanctioned for teachers who hold permanent appointments in board or municipal or Labour schools. In the case of these teachers clear information should be given in the application regarding the nature of the appointment held by them (permanent or acting as the case may be) and as to whether the Presidents of Local Boards, Chairmen of Municipalities and District Labour Officers concerned are prepared to pay stipends on behalf of the teachers recommended by them. The applications of these candidates should invariably be signed by the Presidents of Local Boards or Chairmen of Municipalities or the District Labour Officers concerned.

8 Candidates who have passed the annual examination of the third form of a recognized secondary school or who hold an Elementary School-Leaving Certificate of the eighth standard described 'fair' or 'good' will be considered eligible for admission to the Elementary Higher Grade. Candidates for the Lower Elementary Grade should have passed at least the fifth class of a secondary school or possess an Elementary School-Leaving Certificate of standard V. The certificate of general education should be sent in original along with the application. The certificate of physical fitness need be produced only by candidates selected for admission.

9 Applications not received before the prescribed date or without the general education certificates in original will be rejected.

10. Printed forms of application can be obtained from the subordinate inspecting officers, through whom applications should be submitted. Applications received direct from candidates will not be considered.

11. Applications from teachers employed outside the Madras district must come through the respective District Educational Officers.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, the Indian Finance Act, 1931, and the Sea Customs Act, 1878, for certain purposes, was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 1st December 1933 :—

We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1894, the Indian Finance Act, 1931, and the Sea Customs Act 1878, for certain purposes, was referred, have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill annexed thereto.

2. We recognize that it is equitable that the oil which the Bill aims at making chargeable with import duty as illuminant oil should pay that duty if it is capable of use and is being extensively and increasingly used for purposes previously served by the inferior brands of "kerosene" which are already subject to excise duty. In order to satisfy ourselves on this point we examined certain witnesses representing trade interests affected by the Bill. On the one hand, the representatives of the importers although they assured us that they themselves imported and sold the oil solely as oil for use in engines, nevertheless admitted that they were unable, in spite of their best efforts, to prevent dealers from selling the oil as lamp oil, or consumers from so using it, and that they were equally unable to give definite figures for the proportion so used; on the other hand, the representatives of the interests engaged in the manufacture and distribution of kerosene have made statements regarding the growing encroachment of that oil on the coal kerosene market which bore out the inferences that the Government had drawn from the statistical returns.

We considered with care two aspects of the Bill on which apprehensions were expressed.

It was suggested that the imposition of the high rate of duty on this light diesel oil because of its capacity for use as an illuminant might operate to raise the price to the consumer of oil genuinely intended and suitable for fuel purposes. Oil is used to a considerable extent in small engines employed in connection with agricultural operations, and we would deprecate anything in having the effect of enhancing the cost of fuel oil to people using it for industrial or agricultural purposes. We have been unable to reach any certain conclusion as regards the possible effect on prices of diesel oil generally of subjecting to the higher duty the particular grades of oil that are now in question. The representatives of Government assure us that they do not anticipate any increase on the ground that other diesel oils which are acceptable for use in diesel engines as the oil affected by this measure and which are available in the Indian market, will serve to satisfy the local demand, and that the present imports of oils affected by this measure are insufficient to exercise an appreciable effect on market prices. We have been further assured that Government will carefully watch the situation with the object of checking whether developments are such as to indicate that genuine users of diesel oil for power purposes are being placed at an appreciable disadvantage by the operation of the Bill, and that if it were established that any substantial popular results to those requiring diesel oil for industrial or agricultural purposes, Government will consider it obligatory upon them to take steps to redress that result. It is only on the strength of these assurances that we have found ourselves able to support this measure.

The second point on which apprehensions were expressed was the nature and the adequacy and impartiality of the test by which ultimate liability to the duty as illuminant oil will be decided. We are assured that the standard lamp to be used is an instrument approved by technological experts for the purpose, and that adequate provision can be secured by the rules governing the manner of making the contemplated tests to allay such apprehensions. We note further that in the event of any dispute the importer will be able to take advantage of the provisions relating to appeal and revision that are embodied in the Sea Customs Act. It was explained that Government have no intention of fixing the standard in such a way as to apply the new duty to oils that are inferior as illuminants to the lowest grades of oil which are at present liable to customs or excise duty at the rates prescribed for kerosene.

We have appended to this Report a note in which some of us have expressed our views on the more general aspects of the taxation of illuminant oils.

3. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 25th November 1933.

4. The Bill has not been altered, and we recommend that it be passed as now reported.

NOTES.

We have signed the report subject to the following reservations. We are not given any data to satisfy us that the major portion or an appreciable portion of the diesel oil proposed to be brought under the scope of the Bill is being used as illuminant, leading to any substantial loss of revenue.

The primary purpose for which the oil is imported is for use as fuel for oil engines employed for industrial and agricultural purposes, and for that it is distinctly superior to the ordinary diesel oil sold in the market. The fact that it can be used also as a low grade illuminant and is being actually used as such by many poor people does not induce us to support this measure. This oil was introduced into the market only recently by some enterprising Indians, and it is too early to assume in the absence of any definite data to the contrary, that it has adversely affected the excise duty on the kerosene which it might have displaced.

We were made to believe that the Honourable the Finance Member was willing to provide a machinery by which those who use this oil for running engines could be given refund of the increased duty. If such a provision is embodied in the Bill itself we might be willing to support this measure.

The low grade kerosene used by the poor villagers ought to be subjected to a lower duty than for the ordinary kerosene oil. In our opinion different rates can be determined by the standard test lamps shown to us. We are, therefore, of opinion that the customs duties on crude kerosene oil should be lowered and that diesel oil and crude kerosene oil which may be used for the same purpose should be charged the same custom duties.

K. P. THAMPAN.
B. V. JADHAV.
ZIAUDDIN AHMAD.
S. C. MITRA.

If the duty on diesel oil is increased its price will go up and the genuine users of the diesel oil and the poor people who use the illuminant portion of it will be at a disadvantage. Some provision should be made for rebate or some such return beyond an assurance that Government will carefully watch the situation.

2. In view of the fact that diesel oil of the Indian Companies Messrs. the Mills Store and National Petroleum, in comparison with red kerosene oil, even if illuminant by test, is inferior in the sense of being coarser in colour, giving unsteady light, having a diminishing flame and being more smoky, the incidence of import duty on it should be lesser than the excise duty levied on red kerosene. Therefore the duty proposed in clauses 3 and 4 of the Bill be reduced.

(2) In particular such rules may—

(a) specify the design, construction and materials of test lamps to be used for testing the burning properties of mineral oil in wick lamps and provide for the standardization of such test lamps ; and

(b) prescribe the manner in which and the persons by whom tests are to be carried out and the standards to be accepted for deciding whether any mineral oil is or is not suitable for use as an illuminant in wick lamps."

The following Report of the Select Committee appointed to consider the draft amendment to the Standing Orders proposed by Mr. S. C. Mitra, M.L.A., was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 5th December 1933 :—

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the draft of an amendment to the Standing Orders to provide that not more than four questions standing in the name of a member shall be called for answer on the same day, was referred, have considered the amendment and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

2. We are of opinion that the proposed amendment may be dropped for the present. We feel that if the members of the Legislative Assembly are careful in selecting questions for oral answers and mark with asterisks only those questions in regard to which supplementary questions are likely to be asked, the object, which the amendment has in view, would be achieved.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

During the past year certain Indian industries which under normal conditions could not fulfil the conditions prescribed by the Indian Fiscal Commission for the grant of substantive protection have been subject to competition of an exceptional nature which has proved a menace to their continued existence. After full consideration of the case for each of the industries concerned it is proposed to afford assistance by the imposition of minimum specific duties applicable against all countries.

2. In fixing the levels of the proposed minimum specific duties the following considerations have been kept in mind :—

(a) the necessity for adequately safeguarding the Indian industry concerned, and

(b) the desirability of avoiding as far as possible any increase in the ad valorem incidence of the duties on goods the competition from which does not constitute danger to Indian industries.

Report of Select Committee on the Madras Money-Lenders Bill (Bill No. 21 of 1932) and Bill No. 1 of 1934.—Madras Town-Planning (Amendment) 7 27

SUPPLEMENT.

Report of Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Madras Impartible Estates Act, 1904 (Bill No. 11 of 1932)—Telugu and Oriya.

Report of Select Committee to be presented to the Legislative Council of the Governor of Madras.

Under S.O. 41 of the Standing Orders of the Madras Legislative Council, the following Report of the Select Committee on the Madras Money-Lenders Bill (Bill No. 21 of 1932), together with the Bill as amended by the Select Committee is published :—

BILL No. 21 OF 1932

THE MADRAS MONEY LENDERS' BILL.

To

THE HONOURABLE THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS.

WE, the members of the Select Committee appointed on the 31st of October 1932 to consider the Madras Money-lenders Bill (Bill No 21 of 1932) have the honour to make the following report.

2. The Bill was published in the Fort St. George Gazette in English on the 31st August 1932, in Tamil on the 11th October 1932, in Telugu on the 11th October 1932, in Malayalam on the 18th October 1932, and in Oriya on the 15th November 1932.

3. We met on the 3rd January 1933 for the purpose of determining our procedure. At that meeting, we resolved to circulate copies of the Bill to certain selected individuals and associations affected by the measure for the purpose of obtaining their opinions thereon. We again met on the 24th March 1933, and decided to meet at Stonehouse Hill, Ootacamund, on the 18th May 1933. On the last-mentioned date, we met at Stonehouse Hill and decided to examine orally those who had sent in written memoranda or their representatives. We accordingly met at the Council Chamber, Fort St. George, on the 27th, 28th and 29th July 1933, on the 13th, 14th and 15th September 1933 and on the 9th and 10th October 1933 for the purpose of examining the various individuals and associations who had sent in written memoranda. On the 4th, 5th and 6th December 1933 we met to consider the provisions of the Bill. On the 5th and the 8th January 1934, we met again to consider and pass our report.

4. The object of the Bill as stated in the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill is not to deal in a comprehensive manner with the business of money-lending generally, but to remedy some of the evils associated with certain classes of money-lending and especially with loans advanced by professional money lenders on the security of jewels and other articles to small borrowers who are generally drawn from the middle and working classes. The evidence which we have heard is almost entirely unanimous to the effect that this class of small borrowers, especially borrowers obtaining loans on the pledge of jewels and other articles require protection in some such manner as is provided for in this Bill. We have made it clear that the provisions of this Bill are confined to the class of money-lending against which it is directed by expressly making them applicable to borrowers of sums below Rs. 500. This has necessitated a change in the very name and

Preamble of the Bill which we have now called " The Madras Debtors Protection Bill " instead of " The Madras Money-lenders Bill."

5. We have substituted the word ' creditor ' for the word ' money-lender ' and have expressly defined it as including a pawn-broker. We have also added definitions of ' pawn broker ' and ' pawner.'

6. For the reasons stated in paragraph 4, we have limited the definition of the word ' loan ' to an advance in money or in kind of an amount less than Rs 500 and have excluded from it loan for Rs 500 and above.

7 The Bill as introduced contained a provision which not only made it compulsory on the part of a creditor to maintain accounts of all transactions relating to loans advanced by him but also empowered the Local Government to prescribe the forms, language, script and numerals in which such accounts had to be recorded and maintained. The bulk of the evidence recorded by us was against the enactment of a provision compelling creditors to maintain accounts in particular languages prescribed by the Local Government, and we have accordingly deleted the provision empowering the Local Government to prescribe the forms and language of creditors' accounts. We have however retained the original provision in the Bill compelling a creditor to maintain regular accounts of all transactions between him and his debtor. We have defined the particulars to be entered in the accounts so maintained by a creditor and have provided that such accounts shall include,— in the case of all creditors,—the date on which the loan is made, the amount of the principal of the loan, the rate per cent per annum of interest charged on the loan, the amount of every payment received by the creditor in respect of the loan and the date on which such amount was received; and in the case of a pawn-broker,—the following additional particulars, viz., a full and detailed description of the article or of each of the articles taken in pawn, the time agreed upon for the redemption of the pawn, and the name of the pawner and where the pawner is not the owner of the article or articles of the pawn, the name and address of such owner.

8 We have retained the provision in the original Bill by which the creditor is under an obligation to give a receipt to the debtor for every paymoot made by the latter to him.

9 The original Bill made it compulsory upon every creditor to give to the debtor half-yearly statements of account in such manner, in such form and containing such details as the Local Government might prescribe. The witnesses examined by us were almost unanimous in declaring that such a provision was undesirable, and we agree with them. We consider that for enabling a debtor to ascertain periodically how his account stood with his creditor, it is sufficient if it is provided that on a requisition made by him in writing and on tender by him of a small sum for expenses of drawing up the account, the creditor shall give him a statement of accoout showing the transactions between him and the creditor and the balance outstanding against him on account of principal and interest respectively. We have accordingly deleted the provision for compulsory half-yearly accounts which existed in the original Bill and have substituted a provision for the furnishing of statements of account on requisition, as described above. We have added a provision making it obligatory on a pawnbroker to deliver a copy of the entries in his account to the pawner at the time of the pawn at such charge as the Local Government may prescribe.

10. The original Bill contained various provisions which made non-compliance with the requirements of the Bill a cognizable offence and prescribed various penalties for such non-compliance. We consider that these provisions are ill-conceived After careful consideration, we have come to the conclusion that it is sufficient to mulct a creditor guilty of non-compliance with the provisions of the Bill with loss of interest for the period of non-compliance, and in certain cases, by depriving him of his costs of any suit or proceeding in court, relating to the loan. We have accordingly deleted clause 5 and have substituted therefor another clause embodying our decisions.

11. The Bill as introduced fixed a maximum of 18 per cent simple interest as the rate which could be awarded by a court in any suit upon or relating to a loan as defined in this Bill. The Government are not in favour of this provision and some of us are also of the same opinion. A majority of us have, however, decided that in the case of secured debts, the rate of interest to be awarded by court should not exceed 18 per cent per annum simple interest, and that in the case of unsecured debts, the rate should not exceed 24 per cent per annum simple interest.

12 The alterations made by us have necessitated various drafting and consequential changes in the Bill. A copy of the Bill as amended by us is annexed. We consider that the Bill should be republished.

MINUTES OF DISSENT.

I

We record our dissent on the following clauses of the Bill :—

Clause 4, sub-clause 1 (b).—The provision making it obligatory upon the creditor to give a receipt for every sum received by him from the debtor is unnecessary. In most cases of small borrowers, when the debtor makes a payment, the same is endorsed on the promissory note or entered in the accounts in his own hand. If, notwithstanding such record of payment, a separate receipt should be insisted upon, it will not only work a hardship upon the creditor, but also entail unnecessary charges for the debtor. We, therefore, press that in clause (b), the following words may be added: "except when the payment is endorsed on the document evidencing the loan or noted in the account by the debtor."

Clause 4, sub-clause 3.—When the Punjab Act was considered by the Legislative Council, Mr. Mukand Lall Puri, M.L.C., quoted the opinion of the High Court and Mr. Blacker, District and Sessions Judge, Montgomery, and objected to a clause of this kind. He stated that the High Court was of opinion that a clause of this kind was "one-sided and unjust. If it is made obligatory on the creditor to keep accounts in a particular manner and furnish the debtor with copies thereof on a requisition being made therefor, it is but fair that the failure of the debtor to deny its correctness within a reasonable time should raise a presumption in favour of the correctness of the accounts." Mr Blacker observes: "The only criticism, lies in the explanation which seems too much against the money lender who after all serves an economic purpose. Some machinery could be devised for the debtor to register a protest in such a way that the creditor should not be able to deny its having been made and failure, etc., to register a protest within a fixed time should at least shift on to the debtor the burden of proving the incorrectness of the account."

If, for instance, the creditor has furnished a statement of account and the debtor while acknowledging the receipt of the same, does not dispute its correctness, it is possible that the creditor may assign and transfer this debt to third parties even after such assignment, if the correctness is challenged by the debtor, it may work a hardship on a bona fide assignee. The very purpose of making a provision rendering it obligatory upon the creditor to furnish a statement of account to the debtor is that at the earliest opportunity the debtor may register his protest and seek his remedies. If, notwithstanding the receipt of the account he should keep quiet and the legislature should even under this circumstance throw the onus upon the creditor, it will be very unfair to the general class of money-lenders. For these reasons we oppose the retention of the explanation.

Clause 5, sub-clause 2.—We are of opinion that for the following words " the court shall disallow his costs," the words " the court may disallow the whole or any portion of his costs " be substituted. We consider that discretion must be given to the court in this matter. The court may feel handicapped in some cases, where the costs are enormous and disallowance of the whole amount of costs might be disproportionate to the penalty to be imposed on the creditor.

Clause 6—Interest.—There is no provision in the Punjab Act limiting the rate of interest in respect of transactions which fall within the scope of the Act and even as regards the rate of interest, the Contract Act and the Usurious Loans Act can always be availed to afford the necessary reliefs in fit and proper cases. The evidence given before the Select Committee by eminent persons who held judicial appointments was to the effect that the Usurious Loans Act was quite enough to give necessary relief. Under section 1 of the English Act, 1900, there was no statutory restriction upon the rate of interest which could be charged by a money-lender. Section 10 of the Act of 1927 provides as follows:—

" Where, in any proceedings in respect of any money lent by a money-lender after the commencement of this Act, (i.e., the 1st January 1928) " or in respect of any agreement or security made or taken after commencement of this Act in respect of money lent either before or after the commencement of this Act, it is found that the interest charged exceeds the rate of 48 per cent per annum or the corresponding rate in respect of any other period, the court shall, unless the contrary is proved, presume for the purposes of section 1 of the Money-lenders' Act, 1900, that the interest charged is excessive and that the transaction is harsh and unconscionable, but this provision shall be without prejudice to the powers of the court under that section where the court is satisfied that the interest charged, although not exceeding 48 per cent per annum, is excessive."

Even under the English Act it is only a statutory presumption that the rate charged is excessive and the same could be rebutted. Under section 1 of the Act, 1900, the burden of proof lay on the borrower in every case to show that the rate of interest was excessive and the transaction was harsh and unconscionable. After the Act of 1927, where the rate of interest exceeds 48 per cent per annum, the burden of proof will lie on the money-lender to show that the interest charged is not excessive and that the transaction is not harsh and unconscionable. The question whether a particular rate of interest is excessive or not, will have to be determined taking into consideration, the risk and other factors connected with the loan transaction. As was observed by Cozens-Hardy, L.J., in Pincione v. Higgins, "it is obviously not possible to lay down a fixed general rule as to rate of interest." Again Lord James said, "The word 'excessive' applied to interest, is, of course, a relative and elastic term impossible of absolute definition." "The circumstances of each case must be considered, including the necessities of the borrower, his pecuniary position, the presence or absence of security, the relation in which the money-lender stood to the borrower, and the total remuneration derived by the money-lender from the whole transaction." Lord Alverstone L.C.J., in Blair v. Duckworth, observes "That the rate of interest might in certain circumstances be of itself a fallacious test as to whether the transaction was harsh and unconscionable. In many circumstances one shilling interest for a week on £1 or five shillings interest on £1 for a short period, though an enormous rate of interest, ought not to be set aside."

The class of persons who regularly seek the aid of professional money-lenders are generally poor and middle-class or those employed on small salaries. Every conceivable source of raising the loan is exhausted by them before they resort to the professional money-lenders and in the generality of cases it is only a portion of the salary of the borrower that is looked upon as the means for repayment and often borrowers recklessly incur liabilities and then file their papers in insolvency leaving the money-lender to receive such sums as he could by way of dividends. If, therefore, the object of fixing the rate of interest is to be a check upon harsh and unconscionable bargains, it cannot be suggested that in the cases mentioned above any other person similarly situated as the money-lender would lend at a lower rate of interest. Evidence given before the Select Committee by some of the witnesses also tend to show that persons other than professional money-lenders charge similar high rates of interest. If, however, it should be suggested that it is necessary to fix the rate of interest for ordinary commercial transactions, it will be defeating its very object since full liberty and freedom of contract should be given to the borrower and the lender. The history of similar legislation in other countries also points to this circumstance that any attempt at fixing the rate of interest has invariably failed to secure its object. Even in England although the rate of interest is fixed at 48 per cent it does not prohibit transactions carrying a higher rate than that, only the onus is thrown upon the money-lender where the rate exceeds 48 per cent to satisfy the court that the transaction is not harsh and unconscionable.

We are, therefore, opposed to any provision for fixing the rate of interest.

Clause 2, sub-clauses (1) and (2).—The definition of "bank" and "company," as it now remains, would exclude banks or companies incorporated or registered in native States in India having branches and doing business in British India; for example, The Travancore National Bank, Limited, and The Quilon Bank, Limited. In the definition of bank and company the following should be added after the word "British India" "or in any of the native States in India."

As will be found in clause 2, sub-clause (7) (ii), the Bill excludes any advance made by a bank or a company from the scope of its provisions. That being so, if the definition of bank and company should not be made to include banks and companies incorporated in native States in India, but doing business in British India, advances made by them will come under the scope of this Bill and there is no reason why such a discriminatory distinction should be made between banks and companies incorporated in British India, United Kingdom or the Colonies and those incorporated in native States. The exemption contemplated in the definition of a loan is general for all banks and companies. Therefore we do not see any reason why a bank or a company just because the place of incorporation is in an Indian State should be deprived of that privilege. Such banks and companies carry on similar business and in a similar manner as those incorporated in British India, United Kingdom, or the Colonies and conform to similar requirements of company law.

Clause 2, sub-clause (5)—Definition of Creditor.—The definition of "Creditor" as adopted by the majority of the Select Committee is calculated to lead to serious complications in the working of the Act; nor is the definition warranted by the history of similar legislation in other countries. So far as the first portion of the definition is concerned, it is in order but the second portion, that a " Creditor " shall include the legal representative and successor in interest whether by inheritance, assignment or otherwise of the person who advances the loan, is certain to work a serious hardship in the working of the Act. Under the English Act, the definition of money-lender is as follows; " The expression ' money-lender ' shall include every person whose business is that of money-lending or who advertises or announces himself or holds himself out in any way as carrying on that business." The said definition does not include a successor in interest or legal representative. Far from excluding the said persons, the English Act also excludes bona fide assignees from the definition of money-lender and section 1 of the English Money-lenders Act of 1911 since repealed and incorporated in section 17 of the English Money-lenders Act of 1927, is as follows:—

" (1) Subject as hereinafter provided, the provisions of this Act shall continue to apply as respects any debt to a money-lender in respect of money lent by him after the commencement of this Act or in respect of interest on money so lent or of the benefit of any agreement made or security taken in respect of any such debt or interest, notwithstanding that the debt or the benefit of the agreement or security may have been assigned to any assignee, and, except where the context otherwise requires, references in this Act to a money-lender shall accordingly be construed as including any such assignee as aforesaid:

Provided that—

(a) notwithstanding anything in this Act—

(i) any agreement with, or security taken by a money-lender in respect of money lent by him after the commencement of this Act shall be valid in favour of any bona fide assignee or holder for value without notice of any defect due to the operation of this Act and of any person deriving title under him, and

(ii) any payment or transfer of money or property made bona fide by any person, whether acting in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise,

on the faith of the validity of any such agreement or security, without notice of any such defect shall, in favour of that person, be as valid as it would have been if the agreement or security had been valid; and

(iii) the provisions of this Act limiting the time for proceedings in respect of money lent shall not apply to any proceedings in respect of any such agreement or security commenced by a bona fide assignee or holder for value without notice that the agreement or security was affected by the operation of this Act, or by any person deriving title under him;

but in every such case the money-lender shall be liable to indemnify the borrower or any other person who is prejudiced by virtue of this section, and nothing in this proviso shall render valid an agreement or security in favour of, or apply to proceedings commenced by, an assignee or holder for value who is himself a money-lender; and

(b) for the purpose of this Act and of the Money-lenders Act, 1900, the provisions of section 199 of the Law of Property Act, 1925, shall apply as if the expression "purchaser" included a person making any such payment or transfer as aforesaid.

(2) Nothing in this section shall render valid for any purpose any agreement, security, or other transaction which would, apart from the provisions of this Act, have been void or unenforceable"

One can easily envisage the anomalies of adhering to a definition as recommended by the Select Committee. The test for determining whether a person should be deemed to be a money-lender for the purpose of the Act, is that he should himself regularly carry on a business of money-lending. Otherwise, supposing the money-lender dies leaving A a minor son, B an adult son in Government service, C trustee or executor, D the widow, in all these cases even if the legal representatives are not carrying regularly the business of money-lending, they will nevertheless come within the definition "Creditor" as recommended by the Select Committee and if the minor or his guardian, or the adult son in the Government service, or the executor or trustee, or the widow, merely in the course of winding up, should fail to conform to the regulations prescribed under the Act, they will render themselves liable for the consequences provided under the Act. Surely it cannot be suggested that the scope of the Act is to deal with such cases. Or let us assume a case where the money lender files his papers in bankruptcy and the estate of the money-lender vests in the hands of the Official Assignee or the Official Receiver. Under the definition as contained herein, he will be a successor in interest otherwise than by inheritance and he will come within the definition of a creditor under this Act. Or supposing it is a case where a money-lender bequeaths all his properties for the purpose of charities and constitutes trustees to administer the same, such trustees will be creditors within the definition of the Act Besides, bona fide assignees also should be protected; otherwise serious consequences may follow. We therefore recommend that the definition of the English Act may be usefully adopted by providing for the latter portion of the clause 5 as follows: "and shall include the successor in interest by assignment inter vivos." It would also be necessary to adopt a separate clause in manner following:

"Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act—

(i) any agreement with, or security taken by a creditor in respect of money lent by him after the commencement of this Act shall be valid in favour of any bona fide assignee or holder for value without notice of any defect due to the operation of this Act and of any person deriving title under him; and

(ii) any payment or transfer of money or property made bona fide by any person, whether acting in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise on the faith of the validity of any such defect or security, without notice of any such defect shall in favour of that person, be as valid as it would have been if the agreement or security has been valid;

but in every such case the creditor shall be liable to indemnify the borrower or any other person who is prejudiced by virtue of this section."

There seems to be an impression that a provision of this kind would be novel. As could be seen from the provisions of the English Act, extracted above, the clause like the one recommended above, is provided for in section 17 of the English Act of 1927.

I am in favour of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee except with regard to the following :—

With regard to the application of the provisions of the Bill to ' loans ' it need not have been restricted to loans of the value of Rs 500. I am of opinion that no such restriction is called for and the provisions should apply to all loans irrespective of money value.

As regards rate of interest 12 per cent per annum on secured loans and 18 per cent on unsecured loans will be quite reasonable.

M. A. MANICKAVELU.

IV

I am sorry I have to record this minute of dissent with regard to some of the provisions of the Bill.

Clause 2 (7).—I am unable to agree with the definition of the ' loan ' as provided in the Bill. By this definition, the scope of the Bill has been considerably narrowed down to cases of loans of Rs. 500 and below. Loans in money or in kind exceeding Rs. 500 are excluded from the definition of the ' loan.' So the Bill does not give any protection to borrowers of loans of Rs. 500 and above. Only the small borrowers get protection, if any, under the Bill. In my opinion no distinction should be made between a small and a big borrower All borrowers need and must be given protection The Bill is named as the Debtors' Protection Bill which implies that the Bill is intended to give protection to all debtors So the restriction in the definition of the ' loan ' limiting its scope to loans in money or in kind to Rs. 500 and below is meaningless and must be removed so as to make it applicable to all classes of debtors irrespective of the sums borrowed by them

Clause 6.—I am sorry I cannot agree to the maximum rate of interest provided by this clause as it is very high and is not in the interest of the debtor. I am for limiting the maximum to 10 per cent per annum simple interest in the case of secured debts and 12 per cent per annum simple interest in the case of unsecured debts.

Except with regard to these two matters, I am in favour with the other provisions of the Bill.

C. INDRAIAH.

V

This is neither fish, flesh nor good red-herring I am in favour of recommending to the Council that the Bill may be dropped. Should this not find acceptance from my colleagues I suggest that the phrase ' or in kind ' the definition in clause 2 (7) be omitted as it deals with an entirely different category of loans neither contemplated by the Hon'ble the Mover nor well considered and fully dealt with. No maximum rate of interest need be provided as it would be safe to entrust to the courts to award such rates of interest as circumstances warrant

VI

The Bill as amended by the Select Committee, does not go far enough, but I am satisfied that it marks a definite advance and is capable of improvement by suitable amendments I am thankful to the Select Committee for introducing some provisions about pawn-brokers. I wish provision was made for the safe and proper auctioning of the pledged articles The tender of a sum of eight annas for the statement of account is too high; four annas plus the postal charges will be sufficient. In the matter of maximum interest, I think the recommendations of the Select Committee are too high and at the present moment even the maximum fixed originally in the Bill is too high. Nine per cent and 12 per cent on secured and unsecured loans respectively on sums above Rs. 50 and 12 per cent and 15 per cent on lower sums will be adequate

C BASU DEV.

In my opinion there is need in this country for a Money-lenders Act on similar lines as the one in England with necessary modifications to suit conditions prevailing here. When Mr. Basu Dev introduced his Bill, I welcomed it as I thought it could be so improved by the Select Committee as to make it serve the purpose. But the Bill as it has now emerged out of the Select Committee, will not, I am afraid, cope with the situation to any great extent. In the first place, the evidence that was recorded in connexion with the Bill by the Select Committee revealed in a manner beyond question that there was great necessity for enacting a law to regulate and control the business of pawn-broking and afford protection to the borrowers on pledges and it was expected that elaborate provisions would be inserted in the Bill to achieve the object. But to my surprise the majority of the Select Committee was of a different mind. Secondly, the Bill in its present form has been restricted in its application only to loans not exceeding Rs. 500. I think this restriction of the limit of monetary transactions between creditors and borrowers has deprived a good section of the middle classes of the benefit of a legislation of this kind. This monetary limit in respect of loans is unnecessary and is due to a confusion of different ideas with regard to the nature of various kinds of credit transactions. Thirdly, there is not much effect left in the provisions which are intended to deal with non-compliance with the obligations imposed under the Act. In other words, the penalties imposed are ineffective and seem to be inadequate. While the Bill as originally introduced was itself not satisfactory, it has been made still less satisfactory by the Select Committee.

Madras Act V of 1920.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under section 34 of the Madras Town-Planning Act, 1920, lands required for the purposes of a town-planning scheme have to be acquired within three years from the date of the notification under section 14 of the Act publishing the sanction of the Local Government to the scheme. Government have no power to acquire such lands under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, after the lapse of this period of three years. The only course open in such cases is to revoke the scheme under section 15 of the Act and then start proceedings afresh by issuing a notification under section 12. This procedure involves a great deal of inconvenience and delay. It is therefore proposed to amend the Act so as to provide for the acquisition of lands required for a town-planning scheme either (a) under the Land Acquisition Act or (b) under that Act as modified in the manner provided in sections 34 and 35. Acquisition under (b) will, as now, be permissible only within the period of three years prescribed by section 34. But acquisition under (a), that is under the Land Acquisition Act, will be permissible at any time, whether during or after this period of three years, and the owner will be entitled to the solatium of 15 per cent. prescribed by section 23 (2) of that Act.

The reference in section 42 (3) of the Town-Planning Act to sections 35 and 40 of the Madras District Municipalities Act, 1920, is a mistake for sections 34 and 39 of that Act. The opportunity has been taken to correct this mistake.
